THE MUTUAL BENEFIT LIFE.

The Company's Affairs.

are at present several agent the Mutual Benefit Life Association America, in this territory, rustling business, and it is said they are doing good business. It may interest ing good business. It may interest present and prospective policy holders, as well as the general public, to read the following from the San Francisco Examiner of Tuesday:

There is more trouble for the Mutual Benefit Life association of America. Not only has its license to transact this gate been revoked and in this state been revoked and deedings been begun in New York dissolution, but its officers have for me at least been blocked in their mpt to lay hands on the reserve matter is brought to attention following letter which was adyesterday to State Insurance

Trust company, of New York, and also with the superintendent of insurance of New York, and direct your attention to the fraudulent manner in which the affairs of that company have been conducted, and of their present attempt to obtain over $100,000 on deposit with the Farmers' Loan and Trust company, which stands to the credit of the policy holders in California and elsewhere."

Mr. Hanlon acts in this matter as the attorney for his father. Daniel Hanlon, Mr. Hanlon has refused to consent to the transfer of the reserve fund, thereby preventing the officers of the Mutual association from securing a large sum of money in trust in one of the New York banks for the policy-holders. These claimed to have been deceived as to the amount of their assessments, their recurrence and the receipt of dividends from the reserve fund, which will fall due in a few months.

SEBUCTIVE AGENTS.

SEDUCTIVE AGENTS.

It is nearly ten years ago that two agents of the Mutual Benefit Life Association of America made their appearance in San Francisco. Mutual insurance was then in its prime.

These agents informed professional men that they only wanted lawyers, physicians, notaries and merchants on their list—men who would raturally die in their beds, well-nurtured men who could be depended upon to put off the last disagreeable moment to the extreme limit of old age. Porters, mechanics, carmen or employees of any character whose calling was deemed hazardous would not be considered for a moment. Their risks would be a minimum and the assessments nominal.

These arguments appealed to the keen perceptions of the intelligent portion of the community, and many of them took out policies. The assessments were not only to pay death losses, but were to form a reserve fund, the dividends of which at the end of ten years would about balance the dues of the policy-holders, allowing them to pass their declining years without pseuniary care as to their insurance.

This was the theory. In practice it has been far different, as shown by the correspondence inclosed to the state insurance commissioner. It was evoked by a request for the transfer of the reserve fund, and exposes a peculiar condition of affairs.

VIOLATION OF CONTRACTS. These arguments appealed to the

VIOLATION OF CONTRACTS.

The policy of Daniel Hanlon, on which the charge of fraud was made, was taken out for $10,000 on March 12, 1855, on the express condition that the plemium should not exceed $28,70 per mum. A novision of the by-laws existed by which this could be increased every five years, which in this case would not have been until March, 1890. But in December, 1883, the rate was raised from $28,70 to $44,50, and payment was compelled on January 1, on a threat to cancel the policy. This was the first violation of contract.

Another and the most important provision sought to be evaded, is in relation to the reserve fund, which appears to be about all that a receiver will be called to administer upon should the action for the dissolution of the Mutual Benefit Life be successful. A printed guaranty was issued by the company which declared:

"Twenty per cent of all assessments received will be decreased. VIOLATION OF CONTRACTS.

FIFTH PRECINCT REPS. same and on the current deposits shall be transferred as it matures to the credit of the reserve fund of the association. • No portion of the mortulary or reserve fund of the association shall be drawn upon or used for expenses."
